

VERMONT WORKING LANDS ENTERPRISE INITIATIVE

University of Vermont— Center for Sustainable Agriculture

The Pasture Program at the UVM [Extension] Center for Sustainable Agriculture has been working directly with farmers on research projects and providing technical assistance around sustainable livestock systems, including rotational grazing management, since 1996. The Northeast Organic Farming Association of Vermont has been working with farmers to produce sustainable and organic food since 1971. Both organizations have long, well-developed grant-funded programs to deliver technical assistance, educational support, workshops, and research directly with farmers.
